1	The course information was presented in a way similar to an introduction to research course, which (with the exception of the large final research assignment) would have been appropriate for a freshman/junior 100-level intro to research class. This may not have been everyone's experience in undergrad but I felt as though I was already well-versed in how to do the level of research we were required to do coming into the class. For this reason, every class session seemed to be more of a recap of basic information I already knew, and I was never learning new information. The final research project was good in requiring us to conduct in-depth research into an area of interest, but this was the only challenging part of the course. I also could have conducted this type of research, coming into the course, if required to do so. I know this may be a harsh review, and this may not have been everyone's experience, but I feel as though this class should either be asynchronous with meetings only if someone needs help completing their research, or it needs to include more complex concepts from week to week.
2	Professor Ortiz always provided us with clear instructions for each assignment and always taught relevant material that directly helped us with the task of appropriately conducting research. I learned a lot from his course, and he was always so supportive. I cannot wait to take it class next semester as well.
3	Jose Ortiz is a great professor. He is always clear with his assignments and willing to meet anytime when you have questions or want to go over an assignment!
4	I think Professor Ortiz is clearly loves teaching this course on action research and I found his enthusiasm to be helpful with how he presented content and instructed my class. My only complaint is that I did not receive feedback on assignments as timely as I would have liked to. Otherwise, he is a very good professor.
5	I really liked this course, I will say I found the in person (online meetings) more beneficial than the recorded lessons.
6	I feel I learned a lot about research and I am more prepared to do my own research to better my classroom.
7	I enjoyed and learned a lot from Dr. Ortiz. A teaching strength of his is that he can take a challenging course and put the content in relatable terms for the "non-researcher". By the end of the course, I was able to appreciate the topic of research methods and it opened my mind to teacher action research because of Dr. Ortiz' presentation style of teaching and expertise. Thank you, Dr. Ortiz for all your great teaching!
8	Great professor and was always helpful! I enjoyed the class and it gave me a chance to learn and use research skills.
9	Dr. Ortiz made attempts to continuously provide the most essential feedback to ensure understanding when implementing research into disability studies in education. He was well spoken, with real-life examples to help the content be thoroughly explained for this lens. Information was accessible and was always around for conversation when help was needed. Honest and dedicated professor.
